

2018 Western Dairyland Food Program Provider Training

1. Serving meals which meet the CACFP meal patterns

Meal requirements are determined by the USDA (United States Department of Agriculture) to meet the nutritional needs of the infant/child.

Creditable foods are those foods that may be counted toward meeting the requirements for a reimbursable meal.

Non-creditable or "other" foods are not counted toward the meal pattern.

A meal is reimbursable if it contains creditable foods in amounts required by the meal pattern (refer to your provider manual) for the specific age group.

Infant Meals

Providers may be reimbursed for infant meals before the infant is developmentally ready to eat solid foods whether or not the provider is supplying formula for that child. Once a child is developmentally ready to eat solid foods, the provider must supply the formula, solid foods OR both. The parents can only supply one item of their infant's meal once they are eating solid foods in order to claim the infant's meals for reimbursement. The provider statement must indicate the type of formula that they supply and that they supply the food or that they will provide the food when the child is developmentally ready to eat solid food.

Types of Meal Service

Family-style meals are those in which food is placed on the table in bowls or platters and beverages in pitchers. Food dishes are passed from one person to another, and everyone serves themselves (or receives assistance if needed).

Providers must take care to ensure that the bowls, platters and pitchers placed on the serving table include enough food for each child sitting at the table to receive at least a full portion based on CACFP meal pattern requirements. Then, providers are to encourage the children to take all foods served in the minimum portions required, but the children can choose which of the healthy foods offered they want to take and decide how much they want to eat.

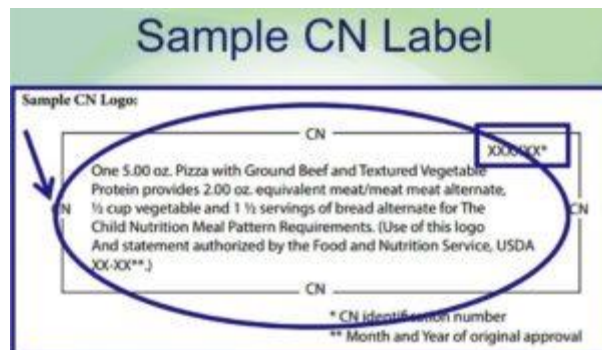

Pre-plated meals are those where all food components are placed on each child's plate or bowl and in each child's cup by the provider. Each plate/cup/bowl includes each component in the appropriate serving size based on age.

Regardless of what type of meal service is followed, all required food components are served together, at the same time.

CN Labels

Meals that serve Commercially Prepared Combination Foods may only be claimed on the Food Program if a Child Nutrition (CN) label or Manufacturer's Product Formulation Statement is available for that specific food item. A combination food is any food that contains more than one food component (i.e. corn dogs, chicken nuggets, ravioli, lasagna, fish sticks, pizza etc.) or that may not be 100% meat (i.e. pre-cooked hamburgers, Salisbury steak etc.).

The CN label is necessary to determine how much meat/meat alternate is in the portion being served to meet the meal pattern requirements. If the food item contains other food components (a bread and/or vegetable), the CN label is necessary to also determine how much of these components are in the portion being served to meet the meal pattern requirements. Below is an example of what a CN label will look like, to help locate this on your food package.

Please contact our office if you are uncertain about how to credit a meal using a CN label.

If a combination food is homemade, both meal components can be counted because the provider knows the quantity of each ingredient in the recipe for assuring that each portion provides at least the minimum serving sizes required for each component the combination food item contains and is being served for.

Special Diet

If a child is allergic or is intolerant to any meal component, USDA recognizes this as a disability (regardless of whether or not the allergy or intolerance is life threatening) and providers MUST offer to accommodate this dietary need with substitutions. A diet statement must be completed by a medical authority to claim his/her meals, unless the provider supplies creditable food substitutions that are within the same food component. For example, if a child is allergic to strawberries and the provider supplies other fruits or vegetables in place of strawberries, a medical statement would not be required to claim his/her meals. However, out of safety concerns for children with allergies, it is always best to obtain their medical information for knowing the proper treatment they need if having any allergic reactions. Programs must offer to accommodate the family by providing a creditable alternative to the food(s) that must be eliminated from the child's diet.

The diet statement must note the restrictions on the child's diet, the reason for the restriction and must state the substitute the child may have, if any. A diet statement for a milk allergy can authorize the substitution of any non-dairy beverage.

If a parent prefers to have their child drink a non-dairy milk substitute (not related to an allergy or intolerance), the parent must make a written request which states the reason for their preference, and the child must be served a non-dairy product that is nutritionally equal to cow's milk. Only in this case, a diet statement completed by a medical authority is not required.

2. Taking accurate meal counts

The following daily records must be recorded by midnight each day in order to claim the meals for CACFP reimbursement:

- Menus
- Which meals were served (breakfast, am snack, lunch, etc.) and the child name or number that was served each meal (meal counts).

Online claimers must keep records on paper if their computer is not working, and must maintain those paper records until they are able to enter into the computer.

Attendance records must also be completed for each child as they come and go each day (this includes before and after school care). Western Dairyland strongly advises providers to obtain parent signatures on attendance sheets.

3. Submitting accurate meal claims

Only meal and snack types approved by Western Dairyland and served during your regulated hours of operation may be claimed. If you wish to add a meal, snack, or day of the week you must request it in writing (email is acceptable).

Paper Claimers:

- If any required components are missing, the meal will be disallowed.
- Do not bubble in the shaded column.
- Make sure to bubble child numbers accurately.

Online Claimers:

- Pay attention to any warnings that pop up when you submit your claim.
- If KidKare shows that you have a pending child, this means you have not submitted a signed enrollment form, or the child has not been activated by the Western Dairyland office. Go ahead and submit your claim – and then follow up with us about your enrollments!

All meals must be served before claims are submitted for the month. For example; a claim submitted at 12:00pm Friday may not include any claimed meals that occur after 12:00pm on Friday.

Claims must be received in the office by the 4th business day of each month or it will be processed the following month. This will delay your reimbursement.

4. Western Dairyland's review of provider's monthly claims and home visits

WD staff reviews each claim. In some cases, adjustments are made to allow or disallow meals of children claimed. It is very important for you to claim accurately. The following items are checked when claims are received:

- Each claim follows the CACFP meal pattern requirements for each meal, based on age of child.
- All children are enrolled.
- You are not claiming over your maximum capacity for any meal (unless you are serving in shifts).
- You are authorized to serve the meal that is recorded, and you are authorized to serve on the day the meal is served (Su, M,T,W,Th,F,Sa).
- Your regulation (license or certification) is current/valid on all of the days you are claiming and that your regulation allows you to care for the ages of children served.
- Paper claims are signed.
- Reimbursement is calculated correctly according to tier status of provider and children.

Home visits

Your monitor will visit a minimum of 3 times per year for reviewing compliance with the CACFP requirements and providing technical assistance and training. Areas reviewed during your home visit include:

- That you have completed menus and meal count records, through the previous day or meals will be disallowed.
- Menus for compliance with the meal pattern
- Foods on-hand and served to the children in care to assure they are creditable to the meal pattern

- Your monitor will review your recorded meal counts for the last five consecutive days or five consecutive days from the prior claim month to make sure they can be reconciled with your children's enrollments and attendance records.
- A meal must be observed during at least one unannounced visit per year. If a monitor visits during a meal service time and you are not home, that meal will be disallowed, unless you have notified the office that you will be away from home for a meal service. At a meal or snack visit, your monitor will record the meal you are serving and will check your claim when it is submitted to make sure you claimed the same food items you served. If there is a discrepancy, the meal will be disallowed.

5. CACFP reimbursement

If your claim is received on time, you will usually receive reimbursement at the beginning of the following month. The date may vary depending upon when Western Dairyland receives reimbursement funds from the government. You are notified of the date of reimbursement through the monthly Provider Update that you receive either online or in the mail.

- No reimbursement will be made for children who do not have a signed enrollment form on file.
- Reimbursement is paid at Tier One or Tier Two levels:
 - If the provider lives in an eligible school area or census area, all meals served to day care children are reimbursed at Tier One rates. Eligible schools are updated and providers are notified by late winter or early spring of each year.
 - Meals for all children in care, including provider's own children, can be claimed if the provider has Tier One status by income, other non-resident enrolled children are present and the provider's own children are served during the same meal service as non-resident enrolled children.
 - Providers who are not Tier One by area or by income may ask families to complete income forms. Families may initial completed forms and return them to the provider for submission to Western Dairyland or may return them directly to Western Dairyland. If the family's income is Tier One eligible, meals served to the children from that family will be reimbursed at the Tier One level. The confidentiality of all submitted income form information must be protected.
- All meals served can be claimed with Western Dairyland for record-keeping and/or tax purposes; the CACFP will reimburse you for a maximum of 2 meals and 1 snack or 2 snacks and 1 meal when the CACFP requirements are met for these meals.
- Provider's regulation must be current.

You may request that Western Dairyland check your tier status based on your income at any time. Contact the office if you would like an income form. Reimbursement rates as of 07/2017:

- Tier I: Breakfast = $1.31; Lunch/Dinner = $2.46; Snack = $0.73
- Tier II: Breakfast = $0.48; Lunch/Dinner = $1.48; Snack = $0.20

6. CACFP recordkeeping requirements

Three years of CACFP records, plus the current year, must be maintained at all times. Records for the most recent 12 months plus the current month must be kept on site. Records for the remaining 3 years can be kept onsite or offsite, but must be made available to Food Program personnel if requested.

The records you are required to maintain onsite in your recordkeeping binder include:

- Copy of non-expiring Agreement between Sponsoring Organization and Day Care Home (PI-1425)
- Copies of CACFP Child Enrollment Forms and a copy of the annual Child re-enrollment packet (online providers will have electronic enrollment records)
- Diet Statements for children unable to follow the CACFP meal pattern
- Sponsor Home Visit Review Forms (online claimers will have electronic review records)

- Menu and Meal Count Records through the previous day
- Child Care Attendance Forms up to and including the current day

Enrollment forms

- Enrollments must be received by the Western Dairyland CACFP office by the 4th business day of the month – just like claims. If an enrollment is not received on time, you will not be reimbursed for meals served to that child
- Use a valid child number – one that has not been used for at least one month
- Make sure you note which component of an infant’s meal you are providing
- Complete school information (time in and out) for school age children
- Parent signature is required
- All children must be re-enrolled annually; the re-enrollment report will be sent to you in September each year and must be returned to our office by September 30th.

7. Civil Rights

The goals of civil rights are equal treatment for all applicants and beneficiaries; knowledge of rights and responsibilities; elimination of illegal barriers that prevent or deter people from receiving benefits; and dignity and respect for all.

Civil rights requirements for family child care home providers:

- Provide the CACFP in a nondiscriminatory manner
- Supply at least one type of iron fortified infant formula and all baby foods for meals served to infants unless otherwise decided by the parents
- Distribute or visibly post the “Building for the Future” flier to all newly enrolling families
- Refer all Civil Rights complaints to the Western Dairyland food program

You must use the following statement whenever the CACFP or USDA is mentioned or implied in your program materials for parents or for the public:
